Difficult to accept voter has no right to know source of funding: SC

Flags 'serious deficiencies' in present scheme

ANANTHAKRISHNAN G New Delhi, November 2

RESERVING ITS JUDGMENT on petitions challenging the constitutional validity of the Electoral Bond Scheme-2018, a Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court said Thursday it is "slightly difficult to accept" the government's contention that voters do not have the right to know the source of funding of political parties.

The Bench, presided by Chief Justice of India DY Chandrachud and comprising Justices Sanjeev Khanna, BR Gavai, JB Pardiwala and Manoj Misra, suggested that abetter poll bond scheme can be formulated taking care of the "serious deficiencies" in the present scheme.

It directed the Election Commission of India to submit details of contributions received by political parties by way of the bonds until September 30, 2023.

"Why not make everything open?... As it is, everyone knows about it (donation through electoral bond). The party knows about it. The only person who is deprived is the voter. Your contention that the voters do not have the right to know, after the number of decisions of this court, is slightly difficult to accept," Justice Khanna said.

He made these remarks as Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, appearing for the Centre, submitted that under the 2018 scheme, the party which receives the funds via bonds knows who has donated, and that "there cannot be a system where the donor and donee do not know (each other)".

Responding to the query on making "everything open", Mehta said that would defeat the confidentiality which has been deliberately built into the scheme to protect the donor from victimisation.

The other option, he said, would only be to go back to the previous regime under which cash flows were allowed and, in turn, encouraged black money. But CII Chandrachud said,

"It's not like that. We are not for a moment saying that. There are three or four important considerations which are very important 1. The need to reduce the cash element in the electoral process; 2. The need to encourage use of authorised banking channels for that purpose; 3. Incentivising the use of banking channels – this should result in greater confidentiality. But there is a fourth consideration – the need for transparency. And there is a fifth consideration that this should not become a legitimisation of quid pro quo between the power centres, whether in the states or in the Centre, and peo-

Moitra, Oppn walk out over 'undignified' queries

OPPOSITION MEMBERS OF the Lok Sabha Ethics Committee on Thursday stormed out of a meeting along with Mahua Moitra, accusing the panel's chairperson of asking the TMC MP personal and unethical questions.

The committee chairman and BJP MP Vinod Sonkar, who continued the deliberations even after the walkout, later counter-accused the opposition members of behaving unethically and boycotting to detract from allegations against Moitra.

Talking to reporters after the meeting ended, Sonkar alleged that objectionable words were used against the committee's functioning and against him.

"We found the ethics committee chairperson's questions to Moitra undignified and unethical," Congress MP and panel member N Uttam Kumar Reddy told reporters after the walkout.
